

Understanding Offenders and Offending National Problem-Solving Courts Virtual Conference

Friday, Sept. 17, 2021

In 2019, Nova Scotia hosted its first problem-solving courts conference, one of several events held that year to mark the 10th anniversary of the province's Mental Health Court Program. The conference introduced attendees to problem-solving courts and provided opportunities for people working in the justice, health care and community services sectors in Atlantic Canada to connect with each other, as well as the people participating in these wellness court programs.

This year's conference — Understanding Offenders and Offending — will be a free, virtual event available nationally. The program will take a deeper dive into the unique and often complex cases that problem-solving courts take on, the connection between the offence and an individual's background and circumstances, and some of the rising trends that court teams are noticing.

MORNING AGENDA

10:45 a.m. AST

Opening Remarks

The Hon. Pamela S. Williams

Chief Judge, Provincial and Family Courts of Nova Scotia

11:00 a.m. AST

Nexus – What's the connection?

- Kelly Rowlett, Nova Scotia Legal Aid Commission
- Aileen McGinty, Nova Scotia Public Prosecution Service
- Jocelyne Boissonneault, Snell Balka and Scovino
- Raymond Gemmill, Legal Aid Ontario

When it comes to determining a connection between an offence and the circumstances that contributed to an individual coming into contact with the law, can that be clearly defined in eligibility criteria or are there grey areas? Hear from a panel of prosecutors and defence lawyers from Nova Scotia and Ontario on how they walk this tightrope.

12:00 p.m. AST Knowing Your Limits
Lindsay Vatour, RN
Clinician and Clinical Team Lead, Dartmouth Wellness Court

Can you support the individual while still protecting the community? Does your court have access to the appropriate treatment options, residential programming and staffing? Hear from a member of the Dartmouth Wellness Court team in Nova Scotia on the importance of understanding your limits and knowing when to say no to a case.

1:00 p.m. AST Lunch Break

AFTERNOON AGENDA

1:30 p.m. AST Internet Sex Crimes – Not All Sex Offenders are Predators
Dr. Brad Kelln, Registered Psychologist

The internet is a modern and convenient way for us to connect with the world around us. But there are down sides — youth can access and are getting addicted to internet pornography at frighteningly young ages. When they turn 18, many become the next generation of sex offenders. This session explores whether we are avoiding our duty to educate in favour of criminalizing misguided youths.

2:30 p.m. AST Relationship between Cannabis and Offending
Dr. Phil Tibbo
Professor of Psychiatry and the Dr. Paul Janssen Chair in Psychotic Disorder at Dalhousie University

Understanding the relationship between and the risk of continued cannabis use and offending behaviours — when is the risk too high? This session will consider the potential outcomes of cannabis use during the early adult years. Dr. Phil Tibbo will also examine how the effects of drug use can influence certain psychiatric presentations, including psychosis and how that impacts risk within a wellness court program.

3:45 p.m. AST Closing Remarks
